Description:

At age 72, Oakland native Diane Strong resists the wave of gentrification sweeping the city by trying to hold on to her family home in a rapidly changing neighborhood. As one of the few members of her family to remain in the city, she struggles to restore an Accessory Dwelling Unit on her property to be able to pay the property taxes and maintenance costs. The first of her eight siblings to graduate from Merritt College, Diane recalls her peers, founding members of the Black Panthers Huey Newton and Bobby Seal, as she wrestles with the challenges of preserving her family home and legacy.
