RE: An Ordinance Enacting a 45-Day Moratorium, Pursuant to California Code Section 65858, Prohibiting the Issuance of Conditional Use Permits for Massage Establishments and Massage Therapists Under OMC Ch. 17.102.170, Pending Review of Both OMC 17.102170 and OMC 5.36.

SUMMARY

This ordinance will enact a 45-day moratorium on the granting of any Conditional Use Permits for Massage Establishments and Massage Therapists in the City of Oakland. Staff will use the 45-day moratorium to continue reviewing permitting requirements for such businesses and to finalize recommendations for policy changes.

FISCAL IMPACT

This is a policy and regulatory matter with minimal direct fiscal impact.

BACKGROUND

Since 2001, the District 2 Council office has received many complaints about massage establishments in District 2 that have had a record of soliciting prostitution to clients and establishments that are located in close proximity to schools. Whereas these complaints appeared to be isolated at the time, research by the Council office indicates that massage activities are proliferating in the downtown area, which encompasses Chinatown.

In 2002, the City Administrator's office received 149 total massage therapist applications, including new and renewal applicants. In 2003, the City received 153 total massage therapist applications, reflecting an increase of 2.7% (see Figure A.). In 2004, however, the total number of massage therapist applications increased to 209, representing a 36.7% increase in applications from the previous year.

The increase in massage therapist applications would suggest that demand for massage therapists has increased, but there was no net increase in massage establishments during 2004, suggesting that more therapists are working at the same number of establishments or that previous therapists have left en masse and had to be replaced. Either way, the significant surge of Asian women applicants for massage therapist permits suggests possible illegal activity, including trafficking individuals from country to country for sexual slavery.

Out of the 209 total applications for therapist licenses in 2004, 140 (67.0%) of the applicants were Asian women; this represents a net increase of 54 (+64.3%). Of the 209 total applications, 122 were new applications and 87 were renewal applications. Asian women comprised 87 (71.3%) of the 122 new applicants. Asian women comprised 53 (60.9%) of the 87 renewal applicants.

In November 2004 alone, there were 18 new massage permit applications to the City Administrator’s office that far exceeded the normal number of 3-4 new applicants per quarter and represented a 350% increase in applications from the previous quarter. Notably, fifteen of the eighteen applicants had Asian surnames and reflect the demographic makeup of young women that may have been victims of sexual slavery and human trafficking.

The District 2 office has been working with the City Administrator’s Office, the Oakland Police Department, and local anti-human trafficking community based organizations to identify weaknesses in current policies and enforcement practices. The surge in applications for massage therapist permits and evidence that the number of actual massage establishments in Oakland exceeds the official city-wide count of eight massage establishments<sup>1</sup> with permits makes it important for the City to re-evaluate and reform its permitting process for these activities.

In October of 2003, Councilmember Jane Brunner sponsored an ordinance (No. 12551 C.M.S) enacting a 45-day moratorium that was intended to provide the City with an opportunity to review and make recommendations to change the policy governing massage establishments and therapist permits while refraining from issuing new permits. Since the expiration of the 45-day moratorium sponsored by Councilmember Brunner, Councilmember Wan’s was made aware of questionable activities taking place at massage establishments and has been working with key City staff, including the City Administrator’s Office, the Police Department, and Planning, to identify weaknesses in the current ordinance and draft a new ordinance.

The Oakland Police Department has received a $450,000 grant from the Federal government to help fight human trafficking in the Bay Area. OPD will use the funds to train other regional law enforcement agencies under an effort to curtail the human trafficking industry, estimated at $13 billion.<sup>2</sup> Federal authorities consider Northern California to be a prime destination for illegally trafficked individuals; many victims of human trafficking have been funneled through massage establishments.

A 45-day moratorium will provide the City Administrator with a legally defensible rationale to deny permit applications for massage establishments and therapists while a new ordinance is being drafted. Without the moratorium, the City would continue to increase the enforcement burdens of the Police Department. By adopting the moratorium, the City will be able to narrow its focus primarily on permitted massage establishments and prevent new establishments from applying for permits.

The District 2 office is in the midst of drafting a new ordinance regulating massage establishments and therapists in collaboration with the City Administrator's Office, Police Department, CEDA, and other public agencies. The new ordinance is intended to protect legitimate massage establishments and therapists and increase the difficulty of trafficking individuals through the massage industry in Oakland by raising certification standards and providing stronger punitive measures against noncompliant massage establishments and therapists.

KEY ISSUES AND IMPACTS

Oakland's regulations pertaining to Massage Establishments and Massage Therapists are inadequate to safeguard against disreputable operations, illegal activity, and exploitation of workers.

I. OVERCONCENTRATION OF MASSAGE ESTABLISHMENTS

The City defines the Chinatown neighborhood, part of downtown, to be from Broadway to Oak Street between 6th Street and 12th Street. Chinatown is home to over ten churches, two elementary schools, four childcare centers, and four senior housing facilities. A densely-populated working class neighborhood of 2,734 people (21,000 people/square mile), Chinatown is a culturally vibrant commercial neighborhood in the midst of urban renewal. The City recently received a $2.2 million grant for pedestrian and street improvements in the core of Chinatown.

Despite its economic progress, Chinatown risks becoming Oakland's veritable "red light district" with the proliferation of massage activities. Part of the problem is that the current ordinance lacks of control over the physical locations of massage establishment, thus facilitating over-concentration in certain neighborhoods (see following section). Of the eight permitted massage establishments in Oakland, seven (87.5%) are located in district two. Notably, five of the eight massage establishments (62.5%) are located in or within a 0.2 mile radius of Chinatown. Furthermore, three of the massage parlors are located within a block of Lincoln Elementary School and Lighthouse Charter School, Chinatown's two elementary schools. Within two blocks of Hong Fook Senior Center and Hotel Oakland, home to hundreds of Asian seniors, five businesses offer massage services.

| Distribution of PermittedMassage Establishments by District |                  |
|---|------------------|
| District 1  | 0                |
| District 2   | 7 (87.5%) |
| District 3  | 0                |
| District 4  | 0                |
| District 5  | 0                |
| District 6  | 0                |
| District 7  | 1 (12.5%)        |
| Total   | 8 (100%)         |

Of the 31 facilities exempted from massage establishment requirements due to classification as “healing arts” establishments or for offering massage as an “incidental service”, seven (22.6%) are located within a 0.3 mile radius of Chinatown. The true number of massage establishments or businesses that offer massage services is unknown, as numerous businesses that offer massage service are not accounted for on either the permitted or exempted list in the City Administrator’s office. A 45-day moratorium would allow the interagency City team currently drafting changes to the existing massage activities ordinances to ascertain the true number of businesses offering massage activities and the nature of their businesses.

A simple internet search for “Asian Massage Parlor Oakland” returns astonishing results and links to websites that document the unsavory activities that take place in Oakland. Many of these activities take place in Chinatown. If adult websites that feature reviews of massage establishments and therapists are any indication, downtown and Chinatown are the places to visit for prostitution and sexual services in Oakland.

In order to facilitate economic development that reflects the wants and needs of the Chinatown neighborhood, the City ought to prohibit new massage activities to prevent further over-concentration and threats to economic development and neighborhood safety.

II. PROBLEMS WITH CURRENT POLICY REGARDING PERMITTING AND ENFORCEMENT

Confusing Regulations

The staff report authored by Councilmember Jane Brunner for the Public Safety Committee in October 28, 2003 noted that massage establishments are regulated by two distinct sections of the municipal code. Two sections of the Oakland Municipal Code (OMC) regulate massage activity without referencing one another. Chapter 17.102.170 of the OMC requires conditional use permits for massage service activities and forbids them in any residential or C-10 zone. Chapter 5.36 of the OMC requires massage establishments to obtain a special activity permit in order to operate. Presently, it is unclear whether either of the code sections supercedes the other or whether receiving approval under one of the codes is required in order to receive approval under the other.

Chapter 5.36.030 of the OMC provides for permit exemptions for “duly licensed hospitals, nursing homes, sanitariums, persons holding an unrevoked certificate to practice the healing arts under the laws of the state, or persons working under the direction of any such persons or in any of such establishments”. Chapter 5.36.030 also exempts hotels, athletic facilities, and “other businesses where massage is an incidental activity.” The current ordinance does not provide enough specificity to ensure standardization in permitting procedures in the Planning Department. New legislation could define “exemptions” more clearly.

Lacks Control Over Location of Establishments

Adult businesses, especially those with a proclivity for nuisance, such as liquor stores, cannabis dispensaries, and porn shops are often regulated by controls on their geographical density and proximity to sensitive uses, such as schools and playgrounds. The current ordinance contains no such controls and has enabled the creation of a massage ghetto in the Chinatown neighborhood. Such controls could help to distribute legitimate massage services more evenly throughout the City.

Inadequate Background Check Requirements

Current city regulations do not provide thorough background check requirements for massage establishment owners and massage therapists.

Establishments

The current policy requires the applicant for a massage therapist license to furnish the address of the proposed establishment, current use of the structure, applicable zoning, number of fire escapes, fingerprints and a photograph of applicant, and certification under penalty of perjury that the applicant has not been convicted of or entered into a plea bargain pertaining to certain violations and is not required to register under provisions of section 290 of the Penal Code.

Additional information may prove helpful to provide a thorough analysis on the background of an applicant. This information may include the applicant’s physical characteristics, immigration documents, State of California identification card, names of all members of a corporation if the applicant is party to a corporation, all criminal convictions and all pending criminal matters, and the photographs and fingerprints of all employees in the massage establishment. (OMC 5.36.050) Presently, the applicant is not required to list employee information in its application. This would have proven to be helpful in the case of one District 2 massage establishment that hired a “towel boy” that happened to have an extensive criminal record, including convictions for pimping. Upon discovering this in 2003, the City accosted the owner of the establishment who then fired the employee immediately.

Therapists

The current ordinance requires massage therapist permit applicants to furnish their name and current residence address, social security number or driver's license number, written evidence that applicant is at least 18 years of age, and the name of a recognized school at which the applicant completed training. However, the policy does not delve into the employment history of massage therapy applicants; applicants' employment history might help separate legitimate therapists that have operated in one location over the course of many years from therapists that have worked in multiple cities or states over the course of a few years. Furthermore, the current ordinance does not designate a recognized list of schools of training.

Currently, the City issues paper identification cards that can be easily duplicated, counterfeited, and shared between therapists that move from parlor to parlor within the City. The City ought to consider implementing new standards for identification cards.

Client Register

Presently, the City does not require massage establishments to record the names of their clients in a client register. Certain reputable health spas located within hotels require clients to schedule appointments and record their names into a client register. Such a requirement would deter the solicitation of prostitution and other illegal activities that plague numerous massage establishments.

Lacks Identified Certifying Agency for Massage Therapists

At present, the State of California does not regulate massage establishments or the practice of therapeutic massage. According to the American Massage Therapy Association, 33 states and the District of Columbia have state boards administering massage practice laws. The State of California has relegated the duties of lawmaking and oversight regarding massage activity to cities and unincorporated areas (California Code Section 51030). However, many cities, like the City of Oakland, have not identified an authoritative source for determining the legitimacy of massage training institutes to verify the authenticity of training certificates for massage therapists.

The current ordinance requires massage therapist permit applicants to furnish "Name and address of the recognized school that the applicant attended showing that the applicant has completed not less than five hundred (500) hours of instruction." (5.36.070) However, the ordinance provides no definition for "recognized school". While there is no agency that accredits schools of massage therapy in California, the Commission on Massage Therapy Accreditation accredits massage therapy training programs and the National Certification Board for Massage Therapy and Bodywork certifies individual massage therapists at the national level. A new ordinance may specify a national organization as the certifying agency that legitimates the massage training received by the applicants.

Lacks Comprehensive Performance Requirements

Physical Requirements

Operating requirements included in current massage establishment requirements pertain mainly to health and safety (5.36.060). The chapter specifies the need for clean outer garments, clean linens, sanitary premises, hand washing, cleanliness of washrooms, and durability of cushions on massage tables. New legislation might address other physical aspects of the establishment, such as limiting operations of massage therapy to rooms or cubicles that are not capable of being locked or fitting rooms that house massage activities with windows that enable inspectors to observe activities therein.

Requirements of Therapists

The only stated requirement of massage therapists and trainees is for them to wear clean outer garments and display identification badges. Other counties and cities have specified attire requirements for therapists to abide by. Other jurisdictions have limited the types of services offered in massage establishments to services that have been posted.

Responsibility for Illegal Activities

Under current regulations, massage establishment owners are not directly accountable for the actions of their employees. Currently, establishment owners that repeatedly hire employees who engage in illegal activities on the premises of the establishment are not legally responsible for the actions of their employees.

Allows Late Hours of Operation

The current ordinance allows establishments to operate between the hours of seven a.m. and eleven p.m. Late hours of operation for massage establishments mean that the Police Department must monitor the activities at these businesses for longer than usual and increases the ease with which illegal activities take place. Recipients of legitimate massage services would still be able to receive adequate services even if the Council reduced hours of operation.

Drains Police Resources

The Police Department's vice unit, currently staffed with two sworn officers, is responsible for regulating massage activities and managing a caseload that includes child exploitation, rapes, juvenile prostitution, juvenile escorts, pimping, pandering, and illegal gambling. Despite its breadth of responsibility, the Vice Crime Unit exhausts an inordinate amount of staff resources to monitor and enforce the Oakland Municipal Code concerning massage activity.

Currently, one vice officer monitors all city-wide massage activity. This officer frequently spends at least three to four hours a day to conduct an average of 24 background checks on massage therapy and establishment permit applicants per month. The background checking process can take months because most of the applicants for massage permits are immigrants or out of state residents. Upon completion of background checks, the vice officer approves the appropriate permits if no grounds for denial are established.

The Vice Crimes Unit conducts inspections and undercover prostitution operations to ensure that permitted establishments do not engage in illegal activity and are in compliance with the Oakland Municipal Code. In 2005 alone the Unit has conducted five undercover operations that have resulted in 3 arrests for Solicitation of Prostitution and 48 citations for Massage Ordinance violations. These operations are time consuming because the Vice unit coordinates with community-based organizations, such as SAGE (Standing Against Global Exploitation) to investigate evidence of human trafficking and sexual exploitation of massage therapists. Any given prostitution operation can last anywhere between 10 to 15 hours and involves 8 to 10 police officers that have to be taken from other assignments, including Investigations.

The undercover sting operations have allowed the Police to instruct establishment owners to close down. However, the Police Department does not currently have the legal right to physically shut down and board up a massage establishment even after determining that it is being operated illegally or after issuing citations for violations that are not corrected. Consequently, massage operations that have been told to close down can simply open up upon the departure of law enforcement. It is likely that the Police Department's inability to physically shut down massage establishments encourages non-compliant business owners and operators to re-open their businesses, knowing that the Police Department does not have the time and resources to monitor their businesses regularly.

In addition to monitoring licensed massage establishments, the Police Department investigates and cites unpermitted massage establishments. Because of limited resources and a historical lack of interdepartmental coordination, the City has not conducted a survey of businesses to determine the number of unpermitted massage establishments. A moratorium on massage activity permits would allow the City to focus its resources on the existing permitted establishments.

CONCLUSION

The ordinance will enact a 45-day moratorium on the granting of any Conditional Use Permits for Massage Establishments and Massage Therapists in the City of Oakland. Staff will use the 45-day moratorium to review all permitting requirements and enforcement procedures pertaining to such businesses and to recommend changes. Before the expiration of the 45-day moratorium, staff will ask the council to extend the moratorium up to ten months to provide ample time for reviewing current policies and enforce against non-compliant establishments. During the time of the extended moratorium, staff will return to the City Council for approval of a new ordinance governing massage activities.

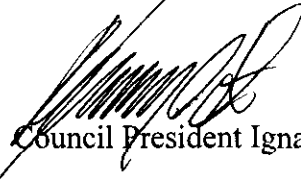

Such a moratorium will not have substantial impact on business activity in the City, while it will provide an opportunity to review a matter of enormous import to Chinatown and other business districts in the City of Oakland.

RECOMMENDATIONS

This report recommends that the Council approve the moratorium and provide direction to supplement ongoing efforts to draft new regulations.

WHEREAS, the surge in Massage Service Activities and the demographic profile of new massage therapist applicants in 2004, wherein Asian women constituted 71.3% of new massage therapist applications despite no net increase in the number of permitted massage establishments, has alerted the District 2 Council Office and Oakland Police Department of potential illegal activity, as evidenced by three arrests for solicitation of prostitution and forty-eight citations for massage ordinance violations in the month of January 2005, alone; and
