Oakland General Plan 2045

What is the Housing Element?

Why Should We Care?

The State of California requires cities and counties every 7 to 8 years to identify major housing challenges and strategies, and show how they will meet new housing production requirements in a plan called the Housing Element. The Oakland City Council will be voting to approve the Oakland Housing Element in January 2023. The City needs to hear from residents about your housing priorities for Oakland!

Based upon Community Engagement, Oakland residents have identified their top housing priorities as:

Stop Displacement

The Black population in Oakland has decreased by 35% between 2000-2020.

Make Housing Affordable

In the last Regional Housing Needs Assessment Cycle, the City did not meet its goals for very low and low income affordable housing, achieving only 42% of the State's goals or 1,745 units.

End Homelessness

Homelessness has increased by 131% from 2015 to 2022 in the city of Oakland.

Take Action

The new Housing Element is up for review and City Council vote!

To make sure housing policies and programs are inclusive and represent the values and ideas of Oakland's diverse population, the City needs to hear from as many Oakland residents and community members as possible.

The Deeply Rooted Collaborative identified 39 community proposed policies through our engagement process from November 2021 - October 2022. We have successfully advocated for 28 policies that were integrated into the Housing Element. For the remaining policies we plan to meet with City Council members before the public hearing on 1/24/23.

Who is the Deeply Rooted in Oakland Partnership?

For the first time in the City of Oakland’s planning history, the Planning Department funded Community Engagement focused on reaching low income communities of color that have been historically marginalized by government planning processes. This historic effort resulted in the selection of the Deeply Rooted in Oakland Partnership (Deeply Rooted Collaborative) to ensure that residents experiencing socio-economic, environmental, and racial disparities participate in planning for Oakland’s future. Deeply Rooted is a collaboration between 13 multiracial organizations that have been serving Oakland’s low income communities of color for many years. Our collaborative counters a legacy of discrimination by ensuring that marginalized residents participate in creating an equitable and culturally-thriving Oakland.
