WHEREAS, there has been continued social unrest and uprisings among the people of Iran over the past 43 years, routinely quelled through state sanctioned violence, imprisonment, and oppression of protesters and any assumed to be affiliated with them, including their families and friends; and

WHEREAS, the oppressive Islamic Republic has implemented rules to control the freedom, autonomy, access, and the very existence of women and ethnic minorities, including strict rules concerning attire and presentation, enforced at random and by force through various police forces, with no consequences for the actions of the forces, regardless of the harm caused; and

WHEREAS, the Iranian government has consistently cast blame externally for internal discord, including targeting Kurdish regions within Iran, and targeting other ethnic and religious minorities with violence and bombings to distract from the unrest caused by their oppressive policies; and

WHEREAS, on September 16, 2022, Jhina Mahsa Amini was visiting Tehran from Kurdish territories within Iran where she was arrested and taken into custody by the Islamic Morality Police (Gashte Ershad) for wearing her hijab improperly according to the complete authority of the arresting officer and with no need for proof or accountability, and was later killed while in police custody; and

WHEREAS, in the strong tradition of Kurdish female resistance, protests broke out at her funeral and quickly spread throughout the country leading to massive social unrest within Iran, at levels unseen since 1979; and

WHEREAS, in reaction to the social unrest, the government of Iran has reacted with ruthlessness, violence, and massive force, beating and imprisoning hundreds and thousands of civilians, including children, and shutting off access to media, journalists, and internet within the country; and

WHEREAS, international awareness and media coverage has heightened, and such awareness provides motivation and solidarity to the movement and the protesters, and keeps international attention on the actions of the Iranian government; and

WHEREAS, due to ongoing United States economic sanctions against Iran, foreign aid, including access to communication technology and platforms, is legally and logistically challenging to directly reach or support Iran; and

WHEREAS, there are many Iranians and ethnic and religious minorities in Iran facing ongoing political, are in danger, and are in need of asylum; and

WHEREAS, decades of United States Department of State immigration policy, exacerbated by the Trump administration's policies, have made it nearly impossible for Iranians to emigrate to or enter into the United States for any reason; and
