WHEREAS, Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children (CSEC) is a serious problem in the City of Oakland, particularly amongst our high numbers of immigrant and foster care youth, as well as youth who have been physically or sexually abused; and

WHEREAS, traffickers often recruit their victims in or around middle and high schools or other locations where youth congregate; and

WHEREAS, preventative education is needed to ensure that the psychological, emotional, and physical harm from sexual exploitation never occurs to any child; and

WHEREAS, schools serving youth from ages 12-18 are excellent means by which to disseminate information about the pervasive problem of sexual exploitation, as the content is related to the sexual health education already provided in California's junior and senior high schools; and

WHEREAS, as a leader in this arena, the Oakland Unified School District has partnered with Alameda County District Attorney Nancy O'Malley and a number of local service providers of sexually exploited youth to develop a curriculum for Oakland middle schools as a means to teach Oakland youth about the warning signs for sexual exploitation; and

WHEREAS, contrary to popular belief, the California Health and Human Services Agency has determined that victims of sexual exploitation are from all areas of the state, including rural, suburban, and urban areas, thus preventative information is needed in all middle and high schools; and

WHEREAS, Senate Bill 1165 will recommend that prevention education about sexual exploitation be taught in California middle and high schools in order to broaden the awareness about this horrific crime, as well as to equip youth with the knowledge and skills to both circumvent the recruiting tactics of exploiters and safely report instances of abuse and trafficking; and

WHEREAS, Senate Bill 1165 will also add sex trafficking prevention education to the Health Framework for California Public Schools; and

WHEREAS, Senate Bill 1165 was introduced by Senator Holly J. Mitchell and Senator Marty Block on February 20, 2014 and was referred to the Committee on Education on April 3, 2014; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, that the Oakland City Council endorses SB 1165.

Sexual Abuse and Trafficking Prevention Education

THIS BILL

SB 1165 will amend the California Education Code to add sexual abuse and sex trafficking prevention to the comprehensive sexual health education and require that sexual abuse and sex trafficking prevention education be included in the Health Framework for California Public Schools.

ISSUE

The average age of entry into the sex trade is 12-14 years old.¹ Tweens and teens are most vulnerable to the tactics used by human traffickers and exploiters. Almost every trafficked victim has had a history of sexual abuse earlier in his or her childhood, which begins a continuum of sexual exploitation.²

Traffickers recruit their victims in or around many middle and high schools, and some elementary schools. Traffickers also target other locations where youth tend to congregate, such as parks, transit stops, malls, shelters and group homes.³ Traffickers have been known to use other students or young men acting as boyfriends to recruit classmates and friends.

Education is key to preventing sexual abuse and sex trafficking from occurring in the first place.

Children recruited into the commercial sex trade have long lasting physical and psychological scars that affect their long term outcomes. They are more likely to live on the fringes of society suffering from homelessness, mental illness, drug addiction and incarceration.

Schools are in a unique position to address these issues, make students aware of these dangers and instruct them on prevention methods. Furthermore, schools have an obligation to foster campus environments that promote student safety.

BACKGROUND

Contrary to popular belief, 72% of trafficked persons in California identified the United States as their country of origin according to the California Attorney General's Office 2012 report.⁴ The California Child Welfare Council found that, "exploited youth come from urban, rural and suburban areas, and exploiters frequently move [victims] between trafficking hubs to further isolate and control them."⁵

Citizens recognize that human trafficking is a serious issue that impacts our communities and have demanded action. Voters passed Proposition 35, the Californians Against Sexual Exploitation (CASE) Act, in 2012 with over 81% approval, making it the most popular initiative in State history. The initiative increased
