WHEREAS, lead poisoning can seriously affect a child's brain and nervous system and has been shown to cause learning and behavioral problems that impact a child for the rest of their life; and

WHEREAS, in California, children are exposed to lead through a number of pathways: by ingesting lead-contaminated dust, paint chips from deteriorating lead-based paint, lead-contaminated soil, traditional home remedies, and imported spices, candies, and other food products; from exposure to lead dust brought home on parents' work clothes, certain imported ceramic pottery, and painted objects; and through certain activities that involve lead products such as soldering, making stained glass, and handling bullets or fishing sinkers; and

WHEREAS, to begin addressing this crisis the Alameda County Board of Supervisors passed a resolution officially establishing the Alameda County Healthy Homes Department in 1991; and

WHEREAS, the cities of Oakland, Berkeley, and Alameda were the first to participate in the program and the city of Emeryville joined in 1992; and

WHEREAS, the program is governed by the Joint Powers Authority (JPA) which is composed of elected officials from each participating city, the County of Alameda and a community representative; and

WHEREAS, Councilmember Desley Brooks was appointed in 2009 and has served as Oakland's representative to the Joint Powers Authority with distinction since then; and
